

Steven Tetreault

Steve Tetreault, EdD, taught English for over 20 years at the William R. Satz Middle School in Holmdel, NJ. He earned master's and doctoral degrees in educational administration and supervision before beginning his master of information program in 2016. He gained certification as a school library media specialist in 2019 and was excited to become librarian for his middle school in February of 2022. In addition to hosting SLC's One Lesson at a Time podcast, Steve created the School Librarian Learning Network website (<https://www.schoollibrarianlearningnetwork.org/>) to help folks find free online learning opportunities, and he writes monthly posts for AASL's Knowledge Quest blog on any and all topics related to school librarianship. He goes by @DrTLovesBooks on several social media services, though he spends most of his time on Twitter.
